

Battlegroup 301 Incorporated - Renaissance & Transformation

Industry and Enterprise Defence Network

In the Industry and Enterprise Defence Network, we have national economic, technology and industrial security endeavours. We need to have resources to defend industry and enterprise. The enemy and warfare scenarios are tremendous. Learning how to identify the enemy and how they operate is essential in the defence of national, regional and local economic environments. Although many CEO, executives and managers are smart, aware and competent, there may be times when additional resources, ideas, awareness, competence is required, resource, intel and backup. The scenarios and problems in Canada's real war is immense, this is a national security emergency.

This will allow those who need to take back and exercise their power, with the kind of ground support they need. A rescue package, various operational campaigns, and other dynamic capabilities and actions, not discussed here, can certainly be developed to ensure the survivability of an organization.

The enterprise may not necessarily be defence related or high technology, but can be everyday general technology, trades, services and so on, that add value to the Canadian economic and industry landscape, in addition to providing something very valuable to the community, people in the circle, employers, investors, working share owners, clients, suppliers, distributors, sellers and so on.

Sometimes an enterprise can be more organized in operations, infrastructure, machinery, people, wealth producing power, in ways to protect, maintain and have long term resource deployment. The entrepreneur, or any size enterprise or entity can make changes, adapt, attack, counter-attack, launch any number of counter-measures, re-organize and redeploy.

To defeat and neutralize the enemy is as relevant on the industrial commercial economic zone as it is in the real war zone. We are attacked relentless in addition to experiencing sabotage, betrayal, treason, and total mismanagement and stupidity by people in government. They are not nationalist, they are not entrepreneurs, many have never operated their own business or built a successful enterprise, most will never understand, but perhaps some do and others will, one day.

The corresponding list of industry and enterprise warfare and defence scenarios, will certainly create greater awareness and understanding about what is going on in Canada. This includes advanced persistent threats in real and cyber space, communications, the news behind the news, the censored news and realities, things that seem unrelated and are not, the magnification or zooming out on various details, elements, factors, events, people, public or private relations and so on, with an incredible range of psy ops and other tactics against Canadian industry and enterprise.

We hope and expect to generate response from people, develop and deploy resources, expand capabilities and competence for those who may require the kind of back up they need. The ability to mobilize troops, resources, equipment and conduct all manner of campaigns in a situation is essential. Multiple war vector scenarios are active now.

Join the Industry Enterprise Defence Network and go beyond being part of the solution, create, build, optimize and deploy resources, technology, products, services and personnel, with a magnitude of possibilities and ability to change the future for more Made in Canada!